

Ovid[®] Deposit Account Service

On-demand single-article access to peer-reviewed journal content

Ovid's Deposit Account Service provides a streamlined 'pay per view' model, granting institutions immediate access to scholarly articles beyond their subscriptions. Perfect for supporting key activities like surveillance, pharmacovigilance, education, and clinical decision-making, it offers a budget-friendly solution with built-in controls, allowing you to manage costs while ensuring your team gets the research they need, when they need it.

Benefits of Ovid's Deposit Account service

Extensive journal access

- Access to over 1,400 journals, including titles from Lippincott[®] and partner publishers
- Substantial backfile availability, with many journals dating back to the early 1990s and archives of LWW titles extending to Volume 1, Issue 1

Flexible and customizable options

- Flexible fund amounts with no expiration until fully used
- Customizable settings like link names ("[Institution name] deposit account article") and billing code functionality to track usage and allocate costs
- Options to allow users to purchase articles across all titles or limit access to specific journals

Time-saving and efficiency improvements

- Streamlines workflow by consolidating journal access, purchases, and management in one platform
- Saves time by allowing instant access to critical articles without delays or complex permissions processes

Effortless management and monitoring

- Manage deposit journals alongside existing Ovid subscriptions for streamlined access control
- Monitor account balances and run real-time stats on purchased articles with ease
- Receive automated notifications when account funds reach a pre-specified level
- Ovid platform integration with document delivery services and reference management software

Advanced search capabilities

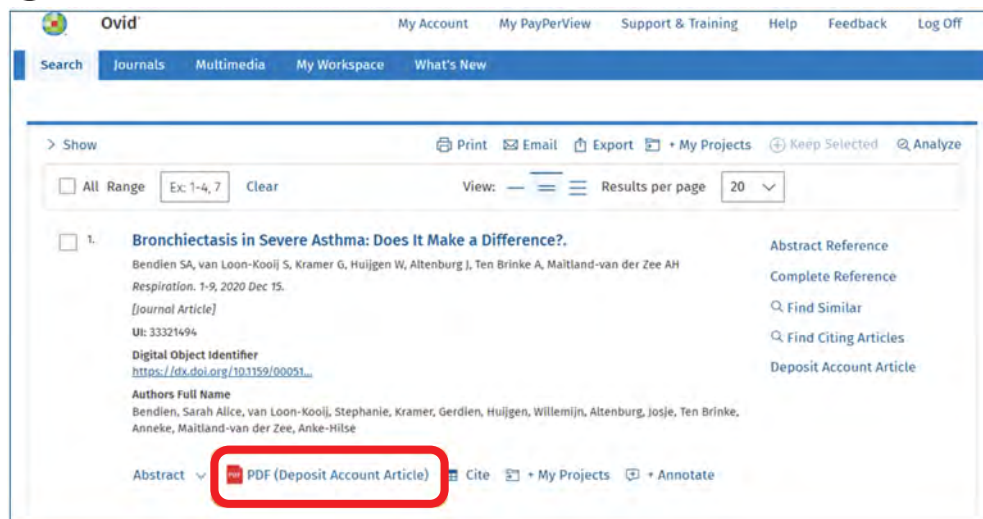

- Use advanced searching and browsing features, with 100% searchable full text, including article text, graphics, and captions
- Search filters and operators for fine-tuning and refining searches

Exclusive package pricing opportunities available on LWW articles.
